RE: Discussion of Transportation 2035 Joint Advisors Workshop

As a reminder, MTC issued a "Call for Projects" in early January 2008 to the Bay Area Partnership to submit projects/programs to be considered in the Transportation 2035 Plan. Project ideas from stakeholder groups and members of the public must also be sponsored by a public agency in order to be considered by MTC.

At the January 17 Transportation 2035 Joint Advisors Workshop, a brainstorming session was held to create a list of possible regional projects for inclusion in MTC's Call for Projects. At the February 13th joint advisor workshop, staff will work with advisors to consolidate and narrow the list for submission. MTC staff plans to submit regional projects agreed upon at the joint advisor workshop.

Prior to this next joint workshop, each advisory committee will review the project list to get a sense of their committee's priorities and possible additions to the list. We will be reviewing this list at our February 12th meeting, and if you have any project ideas not yet on this list, please bring them with you to the meeting. For your information, the project list created at the January 17th workshop is attached.

Please keep in mind these projects should be of a regional nature. If, however, you have suggestions for projects specific to your county, please contact your local Congestion Management Agency for further details. A list of county deadlines and contact information for each of the county congestion management agencies is also attached.

Even though we will be discussing this item at next Tuesday's meeting, all MCAC members are invited and encouraged to participate in the joint advisor workshops as well – especially those members assigned to MCAC's Transportation 2035 Subcommittee. The next meeting of the joint advisors workshop is:
